ARNOLD MALONE UNWILLING TO MEET WITH AUGUSTANA STUDENTS

THE DAGLIGTALE

On September 9, 1992 the students of Augustana University College signed letters protesting the Federal government's policies on Student Loans. Mr. Malone has not taken the time to receive these letters. On October 12, 1992, Mr. Malone attended Joe Clark's speech in the Chapel on Campus. However, he did not take this opportunity to meet with the student leadership. It clearly appears that Mr. Malone does not intend to acknowledge the criticism of his government.

The large number of letters signed (341) represent greater than 1/3 of the student population of the institution. It is evident that students and in particular the students of this institution are, to say the least, "displeased" with the proposed changes to the Canada Student Loans Program as well as the present shortfalls of the program.

Students protested the fact that the 3% tax on student loans, the same one the government committed to eliminating, was still paid by students this fall. Students are angered that the loan limits have not been significantly increases since 1984. Students are afraid that the proposed changes will limit accessibility to education.

We ask the government to hear our concerns; but as yet we have been ignored.

STUDENTS SLAM PROSPERITY ACTION PLAN

After active participation in the Prosperity Consultations, students believe the Action Plan for Prosperity is nothing more than a government sham. The Plan, recently released by the Steering Group on Prosperity, refers to key issues such as accessibility to post-secondary institutions, transferability of credits and the need for a national body to "develop a statement of expectations for education and training". Not surprisingly, though, the Plan proposes no tangible steps to enhance accessibility and no long term funding to ensure the viability of its proposals.

Ironically, the Steering Group has identified the importance of flexible, accessible, and quality education in achieving a prosperous society. But the federal government is currently proposing changes to the Canada Student Loan Plan which could restrict the opportunity for students to get a post-secondary education. "This government is just paying lip-service to the issues facing students today. Apparently, the federal government is unprepared to invest our money in developing a plan of action that will provide concrete means for Canada's students to become part of the prosperous society envisioned by the Steering Group", said Sandeep Dhir, National Executive Representative, Canadian Federation of Students - Alberta.

Said Michele Decottignies, Chair of the Canadian Federation of Students - Alberta: "Clearly, the Action Plan is little more than idle rhetoric. The Strategic Group touts itself as some sort of authority on post-secondary education; yet, it cannot propose workable measures for the economic management of our educational institutions. Obviously, if the provincial government is looking at slashing our institutions' budgets by 2%, they have no plan for the future of Alberta's students."

THE DAGLIGTALE

Students at Augustana can expect a 10% increase in tuition fees again next fall. This will raise the annual tuition to nearly $4,000.00 for the academic year 1992-93. In addition to the tuition increase the price for accommodation and board will increase by 6%.

Students' Union President, Jim Hunter, noted that "the cost of tuition and room and board will exceed the greatest available student loan." Surprisingly, to the Students' Union President, members of Administration did not know the loan limits in the Province of Alberta. The Vice-President of Finance, Ray Smith, noted that it is a "painful" process to establish tuition each year - painful for the institution and for students.

The tuition, room and board increase still has to be ratified by the Board of Regents at the November meeting. However, the Board ratification is likely nothing more than a rubberstamp at this point. Students' Union President Jim Hunter and Student Representative-at-Large, Kjetil Wilkes, will be attending the Board Meeting.

THE DAGLIGTALE

The topic for this editorial, boys and girls, is paternalism. Yes, that insidious behaviour which leads individuals (dare I say, institutions) to believe that they may impose standards of behaviour on others. At this point you may ask: What would cause me to choose this subject. There can certainly be no sense of paternalism at Augustana - NOT.

Although I recognize that many of the "behavioral" policies imposed upon students at Augustana were developed at a time when the institution was a high school, I don't believe the current policies are beneficial or realistic in the 1990's at a Liberal Arts University. The very mission statement developed by the President in 1990-91 claims to "prepare women and men intellectually, morally, and spiritually for leadership in church and society, liberating and inspiring them with the Christ-like model of the leader as servant." The language of "preparation" implies that the "powers that be" are in a position to dictate to students what will prepare them morally and spiritually. Does this imply that there exists an absolute moral and spiritual norm. Moreover, this implies that Augustana alone holds the key to understanding morality and spirituality. Such broad-sweeping statements would seem to be upheld by the 'Behaviour Expectations' in the Student Handbook.

For example, the basic philosophy of the policies of Augustana are based on the following. "As an educational community, Augustana is obliged to establish and promote standards of behaviour and decorum of its own which will serve the well-being of the total community and the individual members." The Student Handbook continues to note that Augustana should establish "affirmative behaviour." I am curious to know what is determined to be "affirmative behaviour" serving the well-being of students.

A look at policy may shed some light. Residence students are well aware that affirmative behaviour means no alcohol in your rooms and absolutely no inter-visitation after midnight. Well there may be an argument for keeping alcohol out of the dorms, what is the argument for preventing inter-visitation? Surely, the adults living in residence should be able to determine when, where, and who they will visit. To dictate that individuals should not visit after a certain hour is not only paternalistic - but silly. Do the "powers that be" fear that people may have -- in Residence? Do they believe that -- is only possible after midnight? More importantly, shouldn't students determine the moral standards under which they live?

Another policy aspect which also relates to this insidious paternalism is the anti-alcohol policy (of course, alcohol is the devil's tool). Many students will likely attend CFS/Students' Union Cabaret Saturday night at the Drill Hall. But did you know that upper Administration has declared that Augustana Students' Union would be abrogating POLICY to hold such an event? Thus, once again student opinion is expected to submit to Administrative objectives. When will paternalism be destroyed and students able to self-determine their own "behavioral norms"? When students, through their Union, take collective action and speak with a collective voice.

To answer the concerns which will immediately rise in some minds - Yes, I know that Augustana was founded on Christian principles. But, I also recognize the reality of today: students come here for many reasons, many not related to religious preference. Further, students should ultimately control their own association and their own events. The more backward policies need to be thrown out and members of administration need to recognize we're all "big kids now!"

Troy Geldart

THE DAGLIGTALE

Recently I was asked by a fellow student, "What is it that the Students' Union does for us?" Obviously I quickly replied that the S.U. does plenty for students, the least of which is the funding for this newspaper. I must admit that I was not surprised by the question, in fact, I have been asked that question more times than I can count on my fingers and toes. The real question is, "What is the Students' Union allowed to do for you?"

As a former S.U. executive member and a current councillor of the ASU, I can say that the answer to that question is not all that appealing. Firstly, I think that it is important to inform students of a few important facts regarding how the Students' Union operates.

The most important factor to note is that the Students' Union is bound by a constitution which was ratified by students' of Augustana during the '91-'92 academic year. This constitution had then to be ratified by the Board of Regents before it became a binding document. The concept of which makes me shudder, why do we need to ratify it at all, if we as students do not, in fact, have the final decision to ratify the constitution.

This type of paternalism goes well beyond the bounds of constitutional debate. In fact, recently (as you may read in other articles of this paper) the students of Augustana were denied the right to make the choice as adults to enjoy the fellowship and company of other Augustana students at an event where liquor was to be served. To explain, the initial proposal for the cabaret which will be held this Saturday, Nov 7, after the Fall Formal, was rejected by institution president Glen Johnson. The reason was unclear to the representatives of Augustana Students' Union, however they were told that they would not get the support of the institution for this event.

Unfortunately, in order for the Students' Union to receive a liquor license it needed the signature of Glen Johnson before it could be approved. Again, the choice for students of Augustana was crushed by the crashing fist of this institutions paternalism.

This story gets even worse! There was a rather hypocritical argument given by administration that the institution could not condone liquor events in conjunction with its name. Hypocritical is the key word in that sentence - Last April, Augustana's department of Alumni and Church relations in conjunction with the development office held a wine and cheese fund raiser in Saskatoon. So then, it would seem that the clear message the institution is sending to students of this liberal arts institution is this - although the institution can raise funds and enjoy the company of donors over a glass of wine, the students of this institution are not mature enough to enjoy such events. That message is very offensive to me!

There are of course many other activity options for the Students' Union to provide and I'm certain that they will continue to do so, but let's for a moment take a look at the success of such events. Dances at this institution have been less than successful over the past few years, in fact many of them with an attendance peaking at 15 people and lasting for an hour. The ironic factor in this argument is that at the same time there was no fewer than two hundred students at local bars. With this in mind there is a fairly clear argument that the Students' Union should be representing the students and if the students don't like the events being held then the S.U. should modify their events to reflect that. I believe that is what was recently attempted and the concept of a liquor event was effectively vetoed by administration.

So who is it that the Students' Union represents? What is it that they are allowed to do? If indeed there is to be honest student representation at this institution, there will have to be some autonomy given and some flexibility exercised by the policy makers of this institution.

Of Drinking, Questioning, Power and Independence

OFF THE "DEEP" END

THE DAGLIGTALE

"The men who create power make an indispensable contribution to the nations greatness, but the men who question power make a contribution just as indispensable, determine whether we use power or power uses us."

John F. Kennedy
Oct. 26, 1963

So did you hear that there is a cabaret on Saturday night? Did you know that our Administration is opposed to this cabaret? Did you know that when the Students' Union tried to get a liquor license from the A.L.C.B., they said the Students' Union needed President Johnson's permission? Did you know that President Johnson did not give the Students' Union permission? Did you know because of that, the Students' Union could not get a liquor license from the A.L.C.B.? Thank God for the Canadian Federation of Students. I digress.

Every student on this campus must go to this cabaret. Why? Well besides the fact that it will be a blast and highbals are only two loonies. Yes, that was advertising alcohol consumption) we have to send a message to the people in power. That message is simple: we are self-determining adults who can decide for ourselves what we want to do thank you very much.

It seems an odd contradiction on the one hand we are at a Liberal Arts institution, which teaches us to question and think independently. Yet, when our Students' Union tried to act on that independent thought, they were slammed back with veiled threats.

On Saturday night, we won't just be drinking and having a good time, we will be saying to the administration "We're all grown up in the 90's, maybe you should join us."

See you on Saturday.

Mid-term Anxiety

Troy Geldart

THE DAGLIGHTALE

I can feel it in my stomach when I'm trying to go to sleep, I can feel it while I eat dinner, when I walk, talk, study, basically anything! What I'm talking about is that slightly ticklish almost painful feeling of anxiety that I get inside my stomach during MID SEMESTER. I'm sure this feeling is not unique to me, and if it is then maybe I've inherited a slightly over active bunch of nerves, but I'm betting on both!

The point is, what can I do to get rid of it? I've tried screaming, and that was only slightly successful. Then I tried sticking a coin on my forehead (for those of you who know about my lightning episode, this is not very tension relieving). Nevertheless, I tried it, but still there was no substantial relief. I then saw a documentary on eastern Buddhist meditation, so I tried one of their relaxation methods. That only made my legs sore and gave me a headache, so I was now further behind then when I had started.

I was starting to think I was going to blow a reality circuit, until one day it hit me. I bought a bottle of olive oil and several bunches of grapes. I threw the grapes into the tub, poured the olive oil into my hair (well, what's there), and slicked it back. I cranked my newly borrowed stereo with the wonderful sounds of Ottmar Liebert's "Nouveau Flamenco" and danced on the grapes screaming, "I love thee Aetola!"

All of this, combined with the sobering feeling and sound of the grapes squishing under my feet, the sight of the red juice slowly flowing down the drain personifying my anxiety being squished away, gave me a feeling of complete calm and relaxation, and finally I was back to being myself... and then the door bell rang....!

LETTERS

Dear Editor:

I have come to realize that this institution is so rigidly set in its ways that to even protest a law is in vain. This school is so obsessed with the material that they will find any way or means of milking the student out of more money.

The other day a friend of mine had trouble with her sister's car. Her sister lives in Edmonton and she was borrowing the car for a day so she was parked in the visitor parking. I offered to give her car a boost. Unfortunately, when I parked across from her, my car died. We tried to start the car but I had to go to classes so I left the car for a short while. When I came back I had a parking ticket.

Being a poor student with no funds to pay the ticket, I went to the Student Services Office to explain the situation. I was told that I should have notified someone in the office. I had no time to notify the office during the situation and when I pointed this out, she told me I should have decided on my priorities. My priorities at this institution are my school work and I don't think that I should be told that where I park is more important than obtaining a degree.

This university is based on religious beliefs and religion instills in humanity the ability to listen to a situation and the flexibility to listen to reason. Unfortunately, the Student Services Office doesn't have these qualities.

I was shocked when I went to the Student Services Office. My belief that this school is for the students has diminished. I have lost my faith in this establishment and Student Services in particular.

Signed,

Wendy Robinson

Dear Editor:

I write this letter anonymously as the intention is to bring recognition to a person and not bring acknowledgement to myself. There is an excessive amount of paper passed out for students to use in writing their essays during midterms and final exams. It is not even the recycled paper that is available. In the recent weeks of exams and papers, there has only been one professor that makes a concerted effort to deal in an appropriate manner with the environment. Professor Mundel encouraged his students to hand in all future assignments and essays on recycled paper. During our exam, he also handed out recycled paper in order for us to write our essays. Hats off to this form of affirmative action!! It is time that all professors accepted assignments in such a way. We are not at the level where we can expect the distribution of our papers to other people for reading. Nor are we close to having our works of art published. So what difference does it make if we hand in assignments on recycled paper? It makes a big difference to the environment. We all have to take a step to reduce, reuse and recycle. Unfortunately, we cannot reduce the amount of assignments assigned (or could we). We can refuse the so called wasted paper. I hope the professors and administrators will take note and will do their part for our valuable environment. We need all of the help that we can get.

Dear Editor:

My name is Ed Marken, Professor Emeritus of Camrose Lutheran College, a retired teacher with thirty-nine years of experience at the College.

Firstly, I want to congratulate the 'snotty' person who wrote the 'ad' for being the first student to confess publicly a complete lack of common sense. I have known thousands of students at the college, but cannot recall having had a student acknowledge publicly his/her lack of diplomacy and understanding.

You stated that the advertisement was intended at 'satirical humour'. I suppose that comes from being uneducated and ignorant. There is a big difference between 'satire' and 'blasphemy'. If you have access to a good dictionary you might enlighten yourselves on this matter.

Personally, I was offended at the article because it was directed at my best friend, Jesus Christ. If you had said something like that about the devil it wouldn't have hurt, but to make disparaging remarks about my Lord and Savior was 'too much'. I hope the two of you will get down on your knees and humbly pray for forgiveness. Jesus said, 'I am come that you might have life and that you might have it abundantly.' I think He is very disappointed if all a person sees is a dripping nostril.

May I suggest that in the 'you confer with your 'facu advisor' before 'going to press'. 'AUC' is supposed to be a Christian school. That doesn't mean that the BUILDINGS are Christian, but that the STUDENTS are committed to CHRIST and what He taught. A good Christian student would never have insulted his Master as you did.

May I also suggest that you two go to President Johnson and offer your sincere regrets for not having used your God-given intelligence and beg his forgiveness. And promise him that in the future you will publish things that exhibit some degree of intelligence on the part of the writer. The 'ad' was NOT satire and definitely NOT humour.

I will wager also that the 'students(?)' who complimented you are NOT confessing Christians.

James, a brother of our Lord, wrote in his letter the following:- 'If any of you falls short in wisdom, he should ask God for it and it will be given him, for God is a generous giver who neither refuses nor reproaches anyone' - James 1:5 (Read the rest of what he says because there are certain things the praying person must do to be heard.)

Next time you write something about Christ, go to Him in prayer first and ask for His guidance.

From a disappointed retired teacher,

Ed Marken

THE DAGLIGTALE

November 7, 9:30 p.m. will see a unique event for Augustana students - a student cabaret at the Drill Hall. For $5, students will be admitted to the dance. A cash bar will operate 9:30 p.m. - 2:30 a.m., highballs and beer for $2 all nite. As testament to social consciousness and safety, sandwiches will be available for free. Also, free taxi service will be available so no one should feel compelled to drive drunk. Overall, students will be able to convene after the Fall formal for socializing and dancing.

First Year University Rep, Sandeep Dhir, noted "this is an important opportunity, for the first time in Augustana history students will be able to attend an official student cabaret." While keg parties hosted by students have been a fairly regular occurrence at Augustana, this will be the first organized event which will offer a quality activity for students.

Tickets are available on campus from various Students' Council reps, or at the door. The Students' Union and CFS anticipate more events such as this provided Saturday is well attended.

LADY VIKINGS RISING TO THE CHALLENGE OF A NEW SEASON

LADY VIKINGS BASKETBALL

With considerable work already accomplished, the Lady Vikings basketball team has been testing itself on the competitive courts of the Alberta Colleges Athletic Conference. With a couple of exhibition games against NAIT as their experience, the team headed to Grande Prairie to participate in the A.C.A.C. Preseason Tournament. The Lady Vikings ended up in fourth place with a win against Grant MacEwan and two losses; one to Medicine Hat and one to Grande Prairie.

Following a week of preparation, the Lady Vikings' fall break was highlighted with a tournament hosted by Red Deer College. In this event, the team again had a two loss-one win record this time defeating Grande Prairie but losing to University College of the Caribou (Kamloops) and Red Deer College.

The Lady Vikings team is comprised of returning players Ama Bryant, Lisa Harmatiuk, Jyl Stanford, Lee Ann Strain and Michel Blades. New members joining the team this year are Frankie Billingsley, Shannon Chinery, Michelle Helstein, Carol Roberts, Shauna Logan, Jennifer Wright, Jenny Shouldice, Monica Sahlmark, and Melinda Kanig. The regular season opens for the Lady Vikings on Friday, November 13 and Saturday, November 14 as they host Medicine Hat and Lethbridge. Don't miss the excitement of Lady Vikings basketball!

The Top 5 Pickup Lines That Never Work.

By Miller Malone

5. Wanna go halvers on a baby?

4. Ladies could I buy you a beverage?

3. I just gorged on salami and oysters and I feel like necking.

2. Is that new perfume or inoffensive B.O.?

1. I don't have a condom but I believe I'm sterile.

* SOMETIMES YOU JUST HAVE TO ASK YOURSELF IF THE TRUE ANSWER TO LIFE LIES AT THE BOTTOM OF A SHREDDIES BOX. MAYBE FREDDIE AND EDDIE KNOW!??

To the "MEN" in 321 East.
We think you're HOT! From your secret admirers in Second East.

Might I remind the author of last issue's letter to the editor: ALL MANKIND excludes over one half of the human population!!!

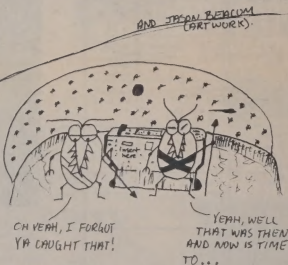

Concerning the "Flying A". Ever hear of negative space?

All those interested in forming a David Reform Club, contact the Tall Cool One at 672-5708.

Have you ever wondered how a chunk of misshapen bronze could cost a 1/2 million dollars?

It is a constant wonder of many great legal minds on how the legal age in Alberta is 18 and seemingly much higher at Augustana.

WILL NICK & LARRY...
a) CONQUER THE GALAXY
b) KILL EACH OTHER
c) OR GRAB A ZOBIC FLICK?
FIND OUT NEXT TIME, AS THE SAGA RAGES ON!!
(MAYBE THEY'LL BE SUCKED INTO SPACE & BURST INTO PIECES)

To the girl with big hair and tight jeans on 3rd West. You're NOT in Junior High anymore. Grow up!
Signed: Get a life.

Wayne:
The sky is GREEN.

Duh, I'm an off-campus student. That MUST mean then that I'm a lump who sits around in the lounge and doesn't get involved. Don't fight destiny.

Yes, there are atheists at Oguustana! Some of these students even worship other Gods! Time to quash creative tension.
